A meeting of the Republican National League will be held at the Arlington Hotel, parlor 150, on Wednesday evening, Nov. 16, at 7:30 o'clock. Important business will be presented, and every member who has signed the constitution and paid his on trance fee is carnestly requested to be

LAND COMMISSIONER SPARKS has offered his resignation to the President in a long letter, in which he defends the position taken by him in his decision of the Omaha cases, and inferentially attacks Secretary Lamar's knowledge of the law and his in-tegrity. Commissioner Sparks has overruled the decisions of the Supreme Cour so often that a little thing like the opinion of the Secretary does not appall him. The commissioner generously hopes in closing his letter that all the wisdom will not de-part from the administration when be

Mas. Wilson, better known as Augusta Evans, the writer of a number of novels, has published a new one, in which the following sentence is found :

If civilization be the anologue of geologic accretion, how tortuous is the trend and dip of the ethnological strata, how abrupt the overlapping of miths. How many cous divided the totem coyote from the she wolf of homological strates. Romulus and Remus? Which is the primitive and parent flame, the sacred fire of Pueblo Estufas, of Greek Prytaneum, of Rom in Vesta, of Persian Atlah-Khudahs?

"Officen Heand and a companion," who searched some men on the streets without warrant of law, were guilty of unprovoked assault, and if they had found and taken a pistol from either of the men would have been guilty of highway robbery. It is time the police were instructed in their duties. Some citizen who knows his legal rights will probably have to kill a policeman in maintaining them, and then the remainder will understand how far they can go. Tue men whom "Officer Heard and a companion" stopped and searched on the street had the right to defend themselves, even to the extent of killing "Officer Heard and a companion." Could not Chief of Police Moore instruct his subcrdinates as to their duties?

Tun Richmond Times, an extreme Democratic paper, in an article of congratulation on the result of the Virginia election, says :

sides the power of the majority as it stand low, there is every reason to suppose that the colored voters cannot hereafter be paraded in solid phalanx in a vain attempt to give honor and offices to such a lot of white men as lead the Republican party, and while the Democrais will be guining strength all the time their opponents will be weakening.

The Times might have gone much further and said that the Democrats owe their present success in carrying the legislature to the votes, or the suppression of the votes of the colored men, as an analysis of the votes will show that what are known as the white counties of Virginia were generally Republican. The Republican party is no longer "the nigger party" in Virginia, or the Dem ocrats have been guilty of most stupendous frauds in the black belt counties.

Gen. Speridan's Report.

Gen. Sherldan, the commander of the armies of the United States, has sent his report to the Secretary of War, and it, in the terseness of its sentences and the directness of its recommendations, reminds uforcibly of that celebrated dispatch which Cresar sent to Rome, reading Veni, Viti, Gen. Sheridan's report is a model of brevity and strength. Without attempting to review the report or comment upon it generally, we simply say the general recom-mends larger instruction in rifle practice, and that a magazine gun be adopted.

We cannot refrain from quoting what he says upon our sea coast defenses, which reads as follows :

The condition of our sea coast defenses has continued to deteriorate during the year, and the majority of them, both as regards the ma-terial of which they are built, their location, and present armament, would prove of but little real service in time of foreign war. Strong fortifications and heavy guns require several years and a large expenditure of money for their construction, and white undoubtiefly necessary for a thorough detense, any unasurous are worthy of careful consideration that promise to semire quickly and at a moderate cast weapons always valuable as auxiliary means of defense, but which, in the absence of a more complete system, might yet be utiled with good effect. Pneumatic gans throwing large charges of high explosives are comparatively inexpensive to construct and operate, and moreover appear, from recent expenments, to produce within the limit of their range very conclusive results. I believe the efforts of Lieut, Zalinski in this direction should be encouraged; it is not possible to predict what their final Issue may be, but that s still further advance can be made seems ver probable, and an increased range and greater explosive effect can fairly be anticipated.

And we most heartly indorse all that Gen. Sheridan says in regard to the aid that should be extended to the National Guard that is, the militia of the different states and to forming encampments for their instruction. On that subject he says ;

I am strongly in favor of the general govern-ment extending all possible aid to the Na. Honal Guard of the different states, as they constitute a body of troops that in any great emergency would form an important part of our military force. They should be armed with the best weapons, amply provided with complete camp and garrison equipage, and in-structed in the various drills and exercise ac-days.

It will be seen that the National Encamp ment at Washington last spring has borne egitimate fruits in this recommendation of Gen. Sheridan. The place for the "encamp-ment under the control and direction, and at the entire expense of the general government," will, of course, be the grounds of the government at Arlington.

Secretary Endicott will no doubt accept the suggestions of the general of the army, and make in his reports, as Secretary of War, a positive recommendation on the subject, and it is fair to assume that President Cleveland in his message to Congress, with which he transmits all these reports, will have something to say upon a question of such vital importance.

Two Sick Men.

The peace and perhaps the map of Europe s dependent to some extent upon the condition of two sick men. One of these, the Emperor William of Germany, is bowed down with the weight of ninety-one year added to the cares of empire. The other is his son, "Unser Fritz," as the Germans love to call him, struck by an incurable disease the same which struck down the greatest o America's soldiers, cancer of the throat.

It is impossible, considering his growing firmities and advanced age, that the em peror can survive much longer. The calbrated English surgeon, Dr. McKenzie with Professors Bergman, Vicebow, Tobald and Drs. Schmidt, Scroeter, Krause, an Sebretegar, the leading German physicians have all agreed that the Crown Prince i suffering from a virulent caucer in the only difference of opinion between thes-distinguished medical men being as to the character of operation that will prolong life

The present Emperor of Germany was well grown youth when the great Napoleon almost literally destroyed the kingdom of Prussia, to the throne of which his elder brother was the heir apparent. He can remember well when his mother, the Queen Louiss, besought the French conqueror to spare her people and capital city. Time, that wonderful avenger, has placed the then unknown prince at the head of an empire more powerful, because homogenous, than Napoleon ever ruled, and has seen him a conqueror in the French capital, but it has also weighted him down with years and care so that he is passing away before the grand fabric he has erected is still hardly completed.

The Emperor William might have laid lown his crown and life all the more willingly if his son, now a man of fifty-six, could succeed to the former, bringing his thoroughly trained faculties, both in war and statecraft, to the further building up of the German empire and the possible unification of the entire German people of

But, unfortunately, as old age lays its heavy hand upon the emperor, a disease as emorseless as age itself seizes the middleaged and vigorous Crown Prince and renders his death but a question of time—and a short time; and the successor to the imperial throne is a young man of tweatynine years.

He, it is true, is a trained soldier, but he is nothing more, and is said to be ambitious of distinguishing himself in that way as greatly as did the great grand uncle of his grandfather, Frederick the Great, who first made Prussia a power in European affairs and laid the foundation for the greatness of his family.

Prince William is a grandson of Queen Victoria, her oldest daughter having married the Crown Prince of Prussla over thirty years ago. He inherits the obstinacy of the Brunswickers from his mother with the ambitton of the Hohenzollerns from hifather, and they have been noted for tha quality since the days when the first of the family was created a duke and given a hom-

This young man, ambitious and possibly swayed to some extent by the old legend which points to an emperor with one hand and four sons (which is his description as the greatest of the Germans, will find bimself at the head of one of the largest and best equipped armies of the best trained soldiers the world ever saw.

Who can conjecture what will be his course, or how much the death of the two sick men now passing away in Europe will affect the destinies of the world?

The appointment of an assistant chief of the bureau is urged, and a recommendation is made that two bark-rigged vessels of about 1,060 tons cach be built to replace the training ships Saratoga, Portsmouth, and Jamestown, which will only be available for a little while longer. Special authority is asked for the expenditure of $175,000 to repair the Hartford, Farragut's old flag-ship, now lying at Mare Island.

The repair of the single turreted monitors and the construction of six tugs is recommended. The report concludes:

"The establishment of the guu factory at Washington and introduction, by the Bethlehem Iron Works, of a plant to furnish heavy armor and gun forgings make the United States absolutely independent of other countries in the construction and armament of her ships of war, and if the work of building the navy is only kept up as it is now going, we shall soon have a navy that will be a credit, as well as a protection to our country and our country's interests."

AUDITOR EICKHOFF'S REPORT. Showing the Diplomatic and Consular

Expenditures. Fifth Auditor Eickhoff, in his annual report to the Secretary of the Treasury, shows that during the year accounts were examined involving the disbursement of $022,878,982 in the diplomatic, consular, and internal revenue services. In the consular service there was an excess of $31,717 of receipts over expenditures, showing that the service is not only self-sustaining but is a source of revenue. The auditor suggests that Congress be asked to make annual appropriations to expense to the disponsations. gress be asked to make annual appropriations to cover payments to the diplomatic and consular officers while awaiting instructions, and also while in transit. Consular fees amounted to $950,630, exceeding the amount of any previous year. There were relieved during the year 930 destitute seamen, against 1,235 in 1880—one-fourth less number of seamen, yet the cost to the government was nearly the same. The average cost of seaman was $3 35 more for 1887 than for 1886. The additional cost is attributed to the increased allowance to steamers for the transportation of seamen to the United States authorized by the act of June 19, 1886. The auditor recommends that Congress be requested to provide for of Jans 19, 1880. The auditor recomments that Congress be requested to provide for the opening of a trust-fund account, into which the wages of seamen and the moneys of other persons (not deceased) shall be paid, whenever legal claim thereto shall be established.

GEN. SHERIDAN'S REPORT.

He Gives Strong Support to the National Guard.

The annual report of the Heutenaut genral of the army was submitted by Gen. P. H. Sheridan to the Secretary of War yester day. The report states that the army at present consists of 2,200 officers and 21,230 men, distributed as follows: General offimen, distributed as follows: General officers, 10; general staff, 576 officers, 1,386 of infantry, 880 officers, 10,300 men; Indian scouts, 290 men; detachments, recruiting parties, &c., 2,396 men.

Speaking of Okiał oma and its disturbances the general saye: The gradual spread of railroads throughout the territory can, however, ultimately have but one effect, and he is now of the opinion that Congress may well consider the advisability of opening up portions at least of this country to sattlement.
The Ule and Crow Indian troubles are

A board or officers will shortly be convened to revise the tactics in several important particulars. The National Guard receives very strong support from Gen. Sheridan. He recommends that they be armed with the best weapon and provided with all necessary personal and camp equipment. He says: "According to my observation and experience most of the state troops now march well and handle the gun well, but they are deficient in discipline and in all the duties that teach a soldier to take care of himself while in camp or upon a march. This devices that teach a soldier to take care of himself while in camp or upon a march. This defect can now be overcome by establishing some system of encampment under the control and direction and at the entire expense of the general government; in the development of such a measure the entire army, as well as myself personally, will be glad to render such assistance as lies in our power, and I recommend that the favorable consideration of the subject may be commended to Congress."

A POPULAR PRICE.

There are certain prices beyond which a great many men do not care to go for goods; for Instance, a pair of shoes, a hat, a suit of clothes, or an overcoat. And if they buy any goods for LESS than a certain figure they do not feel as if the goods were good enough. Thus it is that common usage, or rather popular custom, has made the sum of FIF-TEEN DOLLARS a popular price to pay for an Overcoat. How well we have this season provided for the popular demand in Overcoats at FIFTEEN DOLLARS each a visit to our house and an examination of our line will be necessary to prove, as we have not the space in which to attempt a description of the magnificent collection of Gentlemen's Overcoats, which we are now selling-and selling rapidly-at Fifteen Dollars each.
